BENJARONG

The story of Benjarong

In the 13th century, the founder of the first independent Thai kingdom, King Ramkhamheang of Sukhothai, had an inscription made in stone which read "nai nam mee pla-nai na mee kao" which translates as an abundance of food in waterways and rice fields.Thai people were already proud of their food and natural resources six centuries ago. The height of the development of Thai cuisine was during the reign of King Rama V, almost 100 years ago, when great importance was placed not only the delicacy of the flavours but on the visual appearance. Thai manner of cooking, orchestrating sophisticated ingredients combined with artistic presentation is known as the royal cuisine.

"Benjarong", which referred to painted Royal Thai ceramics porcelain where royal cuisine could be gracefully served, became Dusit Thani's signature restaurant that is proud to carry on and share the traditions of our ancestors' skills of fine culinary.

Rooted in Maldives: A Celebration of Local and Home-Grown Flavours

At Dusit Thani Maldives, we believe that truly exceptional cuisine begins at the source — with ingredients that are fresh, local, and responsibly grown. Our commitment to sustainability and authenticity is reflected in every dish we serve, and it begins just steps away from our kitchens.

Much of the produce featured in our menus is lovingly cultivated in our own Chef's Garden. This lush, organic sanctuary is home to a variety of herbs, fruits, vegetables, and edible flowers — all handpicked at peak freshness to bring vibrant, garden-to-table flavours to your plate. From aromatic lemongrass and basil to juicy papayas and chillies ripened under the Maldivian sun, each ingredient tells a story of care, seasonality, and connection to the land.

We also proudly source all of our fish from within the Maldives, partnering with local fishermen who follow traditional, low-impact methods. This ensures not only the highest quality and freshness, but also supports local livelihoods and the long-term health of our marine ecosystems.

Where possible, we extend our sourcing to local farmers and producers across the atolls, always choosing ingredients that are responsibly grown, harvested, or caught. In doing so, we reduce our environmental footprint, support the island economy, and create a dining experience that is both sustainable and deeply rooted in place.

When you dine with us, you're not only enjoying exquisite food — you're part of a shared commitment to honouring the natural richness of the Maldives and nurturing a more sustainable future, one bite at a time.

Maldivian lobster

That sounds absolutely delectable! The Maldivian lobster is indeed a standout dish that embodies the essence of the Maldives' rich maritime culture. The combination of delicate grilling and unique flavors makes each bite a truly memorable experience.

Thung Kula Ronghai Jasmine rice

Thung Kula Ronghai jasmine rice is uniquely grown in the provinces of Surin, Maha Sarakham, Yasothon, Sisaket, and Roi Et. It's regarded as one of the most nutritional rice in Thailand with high antioxidants and vitamin B1 & B2.

Maldivian Tuna

Freshly caught om the pristine waters surrounding the Maldives, Maldivian tuna is renowned for its exceptional flavor and quality. Its rich, deep taste and tender texture are a true testament to the island's pristine marine environment. this tuna offers a culinary experience that is both vibrant and satisfying.

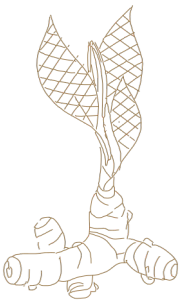

Palm Sugar

Palm sugar is a healthy natural sweetener that has been used for thousands of years in Royal Thai Cuisine. In the Southern region,palm sugar is still made in the traditional way by collecting the sweet sap from the cut flower buds of coconut palm trees.

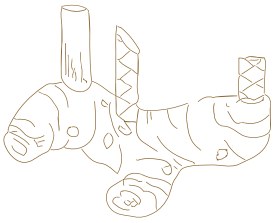

Lemongrass

Lemongrass has been used both medicinally and as a flavouring agent in its native Asia for thousands of years. It enlivens curries, stir-fries, pickles, salads and soups. Most of lemongrass's flavour comes from oil glands deep inside the grass.

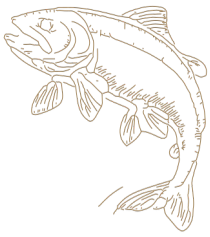

Turmeric

The flavour and properties of turmeric were first appreciated by the ancient vedic culture of India over 3,000 years ago. Turmeric works well in complex blends, where its pungent earthiness acts as a base to help to bind other flavours together.

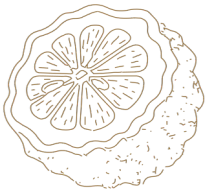

Galangal

Galangal root is a pure native to Thailand. It's closely related to ginger and turmeric and has been used in Ayurvedic and traditional Siamese medicine for centuries. Galangal's flavour is an intriguing mix of cardamom and ginger.

Maldivian Jobfish

Renowned for its exquisite taste, the Maldivian jobfish is a prized catch in the region's culinary scene. Its firm, white flesh boasts a subtly sweet flavor and a delicate, flaky texture that makes it a standout choice for a variety of dishes.

Kaffir Lime (Ma Krut)

The leaves, peel and juice of the kaffir lime are extensively used in Thai cooking. The leaves contain a volatile oil and can be shredded and added to salads, soups and curries. The uit can be used in curry paste and the juice can be added to salad dressing. It is an appetizer and an aid to digestion.

Morning Glory

Morning Glory, referred to as Paak Boong in Thai, is commonly known as water spinach. Locally sourced in the UAE, morning glory has a number of pharmacological properties such as diuretic, blood purifier, deobstruent, laxative, carminative and anti-inflammatory actions. These nutritional benefits add up to its culinary properties of having tender, crisp stems and leaves,making it a staple in Thai cuisine.
